

My name is Tamara Davidson, and I proudly serve as the Atlantic region representative and chairperson of the Unifor Local 2002 Women's Committee. With a background rooted in advocacy and activism, I bring a wealth of experience and a deep commitment to advancing women's rights.

As a current member of the Women's Committee in District 508 (Air Canada Saint John Reservations), I've pursued numerous educational courses, including Human Rights, Turtle Island, Women's Activism, Mental Health Matters, Grievance Handling, Income Security Plans, Radical Justice, and Pandemic Impact on Workers. My dedication to the cause extends to local initiatives such as the Code Red Initiative and the Purse Project, as well as broader campaigns like Universal Childcare, Atlantic Regional Council, Unifor National Council, and the New Brunswick Unifor Political Action Committee.

In my leadership role as vice-chairperson in Saint John, I strive to demonstrate strong communication and collaboration skills. My commitment to supporting fellow union members such as organizing the Tears to Hope relay and walking alongside Outside Workers during their strike.

Beyond the workplace, my advocacy includes picketing for fair pay at Loblaws and experiencing the challenges of walking the picket line during my own strike in 2011. These experiences have deepened my understanding of the issues women face in both workplaces and communities.

I am dedicated to fostering inclusivity and support for women, believing that women's rights are fundamental human rights. My goal is to advance women's equality, both within and outside the workplace, recognizing that empowering women is essential for enhancing productivity and overall well-being.

I am eager to contribute my skills, experiences, and vision to the Unifor Local 2002 Women's Committee and work collaboratively with representatives from other regions to create a more inclusive and supportive environment for all women.
